A Unique Restaurant

Owned and Operated by former Clemson Football Players — Joel Wells '57,
Clyde White '56 and Jimmy Wells '54.

Unique is the only word to describe the Southeast's newest "up and down" restaurant.

Located on 291 By-Pass in Greenville, South Carolina, the Upstairs features fresh seafood daily for lunch and dinner. The Downstairs opens at 5:30 except Sundays for charcoal steaks prime rib and dancing.

Enjoy fine food under one big roof. . .and since you like football, don't forget to see the dramatic action photographs in the Oyster Bar.

What's so great about ROTC?

Check 'em.

☐ Great opportunity. You earn a commission while you earn your college degree. Graduate—you start at the top. Fulfill your military obligation as an Army officer. With officer's pay. Officer's privileges.

☐ Great advantages. Employers prefer a college graduate with service as an officer. Pay more to get him. Because he's a trained, experienced leader. Can handle heavier responsibilities.

☐ Great success. From the 5% of college men who had ROTC training have come 24% of our state governors, 28% of executives earning $100,000 to $325,000 per year, 10% of Congress, 15% of our ambassadors.

☐ Great guys. ROTC men are campus leaders—in ROTC, athletics, extracurricular activities. And they do better scholastically than non-ROTC students.

☐ Great extras. $50 per month in junior and senior years. Scholarships for outstanding students. Free flight training at over 125 colleges. Extra social activities—military balls, honor societies, bands, rifle teams.

Any way you look at it, there's a lot more going for you when you're in ROTC.

Your future, your decision . . .
choose Army ROTC.

Welcome to Clemson

We at Clemson University are delighted to have each of you on our campus today.

This is an exciting period in the growth of the University, now in its 76th year as an academic institution. Our policy now—as it was when the University opened on July 6, 1893—is that Clemson remain the greatest single influence in South Carolina on the combined educational, cultural, agricultural, industrial and economic development of our state.

Clemson is deeply involved in all activities and is sincerely committed to the attitudes that make a true University. We are engaged in teaching undergraduate men and women, and graduate students, in many fields leading to the bachelor's, master's and doctor's degrees. We are engaged in research dedicated to the pursuit of truth and the advancement of science. We are engaged in public service for South Carolina and the nation.

And too, we are busily preparing for the future. Evidence of this concern is the multi-million-dollar J. C. Littlejohn Coliseum adjacent to this stadium. The magnificent coliseum and seven other new buildings completed or under construction represent the initial investment of a dynamic building program that will total $60 million by 1975. As we look to the next decade, it is extremely important that we prepare our young men and women to meet the challenges they will face.

Please come back often and give us a chance to show you Clemson University at work for education of the highest quality.

Stick around.

One of the best things about growing up in this area is that you never have to leave it. Because its economy is growing by leaps and bounds, producing new job opportunities in both business and agriculture. Too, you'll find technical and higher education facilities second to none. So, come graduation time, stick around. You won't find a better place to live, work and play.

Howard Now Football Dean

Coach Frank Howard has now taken over as dean of American football coaches, not only from the point of service at one school, but also in the number of years as a head coach.

With the retirement of Warren Woodson at New Mexico State after the '67 season, this left Howard in the driver's seat for all the chips.

Howard is one of four active coaches to have won 150 or more games during his career and he has out lasted 47 other head coaches in the Atlantic Coast Conference since taking over the Tigers in 1940.

Clemson has won five outright ACC titles under Howard and has shared another. In the 15-year history of the conference, the Tigers have posted a 59-26-2 against family competition and own an 89-56-8 overall mark. In all-time play against ACC teams, Clemson has posted a 120-65-5 record.

The Century Club . . .

Coach Frank Howard of Clemson has now taken over as dean of American football coaches, having had more years as a head coach at a major football institution (as classified by the National Collegiate Athletic Bureau) as well as having the longest tenure in the nation.

Howard is one of 12 active coaches who has won over 100 games and is one of four to have won 150 or more games. Others in this category are Bear Bryant at Alabama, Johnny Vaught at Mississippi and Clarence Stasavich at East Carolina.

Darrell Royal of Texas joined the "Century Club" last year and now has 105 wins while Warren Woodson at New Mexico State and Buff Donelli of Columbia retired from coaching.

CLEMSON:

A Growing University

Clemson University has served the educational, research and cultural needs of the state and its people since it was founded in 1889, the result of a bequest to the state by Thomas G. Clemson, first U.S. Commissioner of Agriculture.

Since its opening on July 7, 1893 with a faculty of 15, a student body of 446, and a physical plant of four red brick buildings, Clemson has remained dedicated to its primary goal of serving the educational needs of the individual student.

Once an all-male institution, the doors were opened to women students in 1955 when the military status was dropped. On July 1, 1964, Clemson Agricultural College officially became Clemson University.

This year, a record 6,838 students are enrolled on the main campus and at two-year centers in Greenville and Sumter. Ninety per cent of these students graduated in the top half of their high school classes. In the past 10 years the faculty has more than doubled. Almost 70 per cent of the University's 470 faculty members hold terminal degrees in their specialties.

Clemson places academic stress on curricula designed for a quality education, and pursues a continuing policy of curricula evaluation to keep pace with the changing needs of industry, science and business.

In little more than a decade, Clemson has added more than $45 million to teaching and research facilities. The Robert Muldrow Cooper Library is the center of student and faculty study and research, and is also the permanent home of papers and souvenirs of the Honorable James F. Byrnes.

HIGH-RISE RESIDENCE HALL ON EAST CAMPUS

An additional $60 million of construction to meet the needs of a 10,000 student body by 1975 is well under way. Already completed on East Campus are two high-rise residence halls, an additional cafeteria, and a student health center. The J. C. Littlejohn Coliseum will soon open. Two additional buildings will be completed in early 1969: the D. W. Daniel Arts and Science Classroom Building and the Rhodes Graduate Engineering Research Building.

The Clemson administration under Dr. Robert C. Edwards emphasizes the importance of scholarship and excellence in education and at the same time is devoted to advancing Clemson as the leading force for the educational, industrial, business and cultural development of its state.

SCHILLETTER HALLS, A $1.1-MILLION DINING FACILITY, SERVES STUDENTS LIVING IN THE GROWING EAST CAMPUS AREA.

CLEMSON ALMA MATER

Where the Blue Ridge yawns its greatness

Where the Tigers play;

Here the sons of dear old Clemson

Reign supreme always.

Chorus

Dear old Clemson, we will triumph

And with all our might

That the Tiger's roar may echo

O'er the mountain height.

Death Valley Record . . .

In the past 26 seasons, 23 teams have made appearances in Clemson Memorial Stadium, now pretty widely known as "Death Valley." Only five teams (George Washington, Villanova, Maryland, Alabama and Georgia) have an edge on the Tigers' home ground and three of these (GW, Villanova and Alabama) have just played one game in Memorial Stadium. Below is a season-by-season rundown of Clemson's record at home since the stadium was built and used for the first time in 1942.

ADDITIONAL FACTS

Clemson's longest winning streak at home is 10 games and occurred during the 1949-50-51 seasons. A nine game skein came during the 1957-58-59 seasons. The Tigers have lost three in a row at home once (1962).

Clemson has shutout opponents 26 times in "Death Valley." (Presbyterian 9 times; N. C. State 4; Furman, Duquesne and Wake Forest, twice each; and VPI, Auburn, Citadel, Virginia, Duke, North Carolina and Texas Christian, once each). The Tigers have been shutout five times at home in 24 seasons. Between the Maryland whitewash in 1953 and the Duke blanking in 1962, the Tigers scored in 38 consecutive home games.

There is absolutely no solution to the water pollution problem

modernized disposal methods of sewage & industrial wastes

In Colonial days our streams were able to carry off the waste created by the small population. Over the years, the streams fought a losing battle; today they are overwhelmed. They just can't handle the great amount of waste dumped in by cities and industry.

The only way to correct this situation is through the proper disposal of sewage and industrial wastes. Realizing this great need, Pomona Pipe Products has broadened its services in the sanitation field.

In addition to the sanitary sewer pipe which we have been selling for generations, we now carry a complete line of other sanitation equipment, such as sewage pumping stations, treatment plants, chlorination equipment, etc. Our technical staff is ready to help with all phases of sanitation planning, including financing and federal programs. We welcome an opportunity to be of assistance on any problem which you may have regarding waste disposal.

ACC Comments: Summer Jobs

What do Atlantic Coast Conference football players do during the summer months? Most of them do the same things that other students do. A few go to summer school, a few satisfy military obligations, and most of them hold down summer jobs to earn a little extra spending money for the school year ahead. Quite a few summer jobs fall in the "out of the ordinary" category.

BENNY GALLOWAY, South Carolina halfback: "A summer job during my years in college has been, for me, a source of adventure; a means of doing something that is fun as well as making money. I have had several jobs ranging from erecting tombstones to working in a pea cannery in Walla Walla, Washington. The most fun, however, was my job as a fish warden in Alaska after my sophomore year. We lived in a tent and were to keep poachers from illegally catching Salmon going up the river to spawn." "My biggest thrill came one morning when I looked out of the tent and saw a bear, about 10 feet tall, eating our butter and other food we had stored outside."

North Carolina center CHIP BRADLEY hasn't run across any bears, but he has worked with a dog in his job as a uniformed security guard. Sometimes, said Bradley, the dog—a trained German Shepherd—knows more about what's going on than his human partner. A case in point occurred once when Bradley and his dog were taking a supper break while assigned as night watchman at a plant in Asheville, N. C.

"This racket started up like the plant was under attack," said Bradley, "I was up and after whatever had set off the alarm, with my gun out. Then I noticed that the dog was taking all of this with a yawn. He knew the difference between the time clock being on the blitz and the burglar alarm. I didn't."

"You might say that I clean up at the horse races," is the way N. C. State defensive back PAUL REID describes his summer job at Monmouth Park race track in New Jersey.

"I drive one of the five tractors that are sent out after each race to take out the hoof marks from the previous race," says Reid. "In addition to maintenance of the track during the racing time, my job entails maintenance in the morning after workouts and after racing has concluded for the day. I start around 8 A. M., and finish around 8 P. M., six days a week during the 59 day meet."

Virginia guard CHUCK HAMMER also had a 12 hour day in his job on a natural gas pipeline construction project; but his work day was at night.

"We started at 7 P. M., and got off at 7 A. M., on my shift," said Hammer. "The job was with the Bechtel Corporation and the pipeline was about 200 feet underground and through the mountainous region of western Pennsylvania. It was hard manual labor, the kind that keeps you in shape for football."

Maryland quarterback CHUCK DRIMAL has worked several summers on a job just as hard, physically, and perhaps quite a bit more fragrant. He was a garbage collector in his home town of Valley Stream, N. Y., before being promoted to another job in the sanitation department. Drimal said he looked upon his summer job as the real beginning of football season. "Football begins June 1, when you pick a summer job. The job that one chooses should not only be physically tough but also mentally demanding. This type of labor will pay dividends when those long double sessions start in September."

Clemson safetyman JEWELL McLAURIN keeps in shape for football by sorting and grading cucumbers at Little Rock, S. C.

"With sacks and sacks of cucumbers to lift each day, it was a pretty good way to stay in shape," McLaurin said. "One advantage to the job was that we generally didn't go to work until about 10 each morning. But one disadvantage was we had to stay until all cucumbers brought in were sorted, which might be 10 o'clock at night. I enjoyed my work, but I don't know if I'll be able to look a pickle in the face anymore."

Duke halfback NADER BAYDOUN worked with juvenile offenders in Dearborn, Michigan.

"Some people would probably call them juvenile delinquents," said Baydoun. "I call them troubled kids. A lot of them don't have families. All of them need help and get it, I think, in this special program. My part has been to be a 'big brother' to some of the boys. I've taken them on picnics, to baseball games, to the zoo and other places. The kids know I'm an athlete and really look up to me for doing this. Even if I had a more lucrative job offer, I'd still do this."

WIN HEADLEY, a tackle at Wake Forest, has worked several summers in the juvenile detention home in Bridgeport.

"My job is to arrange activities, mainly in athletics, during recreation periods," he said. "In some instances it has been very difficult to communicate with these youngsters, but in others I feel I have helped by trying to answer their questions. Although I haven't definitely decided on my plans after graduation, I feel I would like to remain in some type of work that will keep me in contact with youngsters."

The IPTAY Story

The Clemson IPTAY Club is made up of a group of dedicated people whose desire it is to see that the Tigers retain a successful athletic program, competitive with any institution in the nation.

Forming the heart of the organization are the officers, directors and representatives who are full-time envoys for Clemson throughout the State of South Carolina, as well as other states.

South Carolina is broken down into six districts, each with a director, who also may be an officer in IPTAY. Each district has a group of representatives and here the number of representatives depend on the population, or territory to be covered.

The main concern of the representatives is to see that a successful membership drive is carried out each year. The method of each drive differs in that some areas stage short, intensive annual drives and others keep up the pace year round.

Directors and representatives serve as a liaison between Clemson and their particular area. IPTAY, with its district directors and representatives, working with loyal Clemson friends, is a close knit, hard hitting organization when its forces are marshalled for a fight to help Clemson.

IPTAY enjoyed its most successful year which ended August 31, 1968. The club is now in its 35th year, but during the 34th of operation, IPTAY had its largest membership on record.

There were nearly 9,300 regular members and over 1,000 Gold Card ($100 or more) contributors. These together represented over 19,000 memberships and money received was more than had been realized in any previous year.

IPTAY was started for just one purpose—to finance athletic scholarships at Clemson. That is still the way IPTAY is run today. The money received during the past 34 years has been used for scholarships and scholarships only. All money contributed is tax deductible.

From the records available, there were 185 people who were IPTAY members during that first year of 1934-35. Over a third of these are now deceased, but better than 60 per cent of those still living are members today and a fifth of them are Gold Card members.

Anyone, regardless of alma mater or age who is interested in seeing the Tigers retain a respected ranking in their athletic endeavors, can become a member of IPTAY by contributing $20 or more a year.

IPTAY means an investment in the future because through IPTAY dollars, education and security are assured many young athletes each year.

J. C. LITTLEJOHN COLISEUM

A week from tonight the spacious Littlejohn Coliseum will swing open its doors for the opening of the basketball season, and for Coach Bobby Roberts, it is a dream come true.

The outdated Fike Field House with its cramped quarters, long ago popped at the seams from student and public demand. However, most will agree that there was nothing like hearing the band strike up with "Tiger Rag" and "Dixie" just when the Tigers needed a little encouragement.

But the new coliseum, which can be seen from over the north stands from Memorial Stadium, has been coming out of its "hole" for two years now and the finishing touches are all but applied.

The enormous building is 300 feet square, or the same length as a football field. Another comparison is with the Robert Muldrow Cooper Library, a good-sized structure itself at 180-feet square. In planning such a venture, convenience for the fans, players and press was taken into consideration.

Every seat is an individual chair of plastic bottom and back with wrought iron arm rests. Every seat faces the playing floor. While the building does not rise from the ground any great height, 18 of the rows are below ground level and 11 are above the contour.

The portals are so constructed where a person with a seat in the lower level will not interfere with another going to the upper seats.

Altogether, there are nearly 10,300 permanent-type seats and plans are for side court bleachers to take care of another 700, making the capacity just under 11,000.

. . . opens a new era in Clemson

All of the press, radio and scouts will be located on floor level. There are television outlets on the floor as well as on the movie platform.

Four scoreboards have been conveniently placed in the four corners eight feet above the playing surface which will enable players and fans alike to continue to watch the game and keep up with the time at the same moment.

Sparkling dressing facilities are provided for four teams as well as the officials. One floor below the main concourse area are offices of the basketball coaches, a lounge for visitors and press, as well as a working press room.

The football parking areas will be utilized for the basketball fans, as will other improved areas in and around the coliseum.

The coliseum was named for J. C. Littlejohn, who, in his long time association with the university, served in many capacities but is most remembered for his many years as the school's business manager and friend of athletics.

Georgia Tech, who played the last game in the old Fike Field House, will have the honor of furnishing the opposition in the first game next Saturday. Seven days later All-America Pete Maravich and his Louisiana State teammates are in town.

The coliseum will be dedicated Saturday, Feb. 22, on regional television with Maryland.

SOUTH CAROLINA GAMECOCKS

Clemson welcomes the University of South Carolina, its fans, coaching staff and football players to the campus today. Among the Gamecocks who will be furnishing the Tigers opposition in this long-standing series are, staring in the lower left hand corner and reading clockwise, Chris Bank, Don Bailey, Johnny Gregory, Gene Schwarting, Tommy Suggs, Mack Lee Tharpe, Al Usher, Pat Watson, Fred Zeigler, Richard Genoble, Dave Grant and Doug Hamrick. In the center is the shaded walk leading to DeSaussure College, second-oldest structure on the campus which now houses the Department of Foreign Languages.

"OFFICIAL WATCH FOR THIS GAME — LONGINES — THE WORLD'S MOST HONORED WATCH"

The U. S. C. Series

For the third straight year for Clemson, the Atlantic Coast Conference championship hinges on the outcome of the South Carolina game.

Two years ago, after being defeated by N. C. State, the Tigers turned it on the Gamecocks by a 35-10 score in Death Valley and last year in Columbia upended its arch rival, 23-12, for their second consecutive crown.

The Tigers are going for another title today and counting a share of the title in '65, could become the first team in league history to win or be co-holder of the championship four straight years. Duke won titles in 1960-61-62.

For Coach Frank Howard this is his 29th game with the Gamecocks and right now he is all even on the board with 13 wins, 13 losses and two ties. He is 2-1 against Coach Paul Dietzel, having lost to him, 7-0, in the 1959 Sugar Bowl when he was at Louisiana State, but taking two straight since the former Miami (O.) Little All-America took over the fortunes of the Gamecocks.

Each team has either lost starters, or have a few doubtful performers, for today's game because of injuries. The Tigers' most serious loss was that of fullback Ray Yauger, who gained 201 yards against North Carolina last Saturday before suffering a fracture of the left forearm.

Reserved seats have been non-existent for months for this 66th renewal of one of the nation's oldest gridiron rivalries. General admission tickets have been selling almost like 50-yard line seats since the reserved tickets were exhausted.

And it's entirely possible that the state's largest football crowd in history will be on hand today. The Alabama-Clemson game drew 49,596 last season in Death Valley.

These two teams just naturally attract a crowd no matter the season, sport or site.

RECEIVING . . .

FIRST TEAM TO FLY

by ARCH NAPIER

IT WAS BACK in 1929 that a football coach first decided to fly his team to a game.

"Fly?" everyone asked. "Golly, where's he going to get all the planes? It would take the Graf Zeppelin to fly a whole football squad. And why fly? No sensible coach wants to field a team that's airsick!"

No, but you didn't build an athletic program in a little cow college by being too sensible, either. When Coach Roy Johnson came to the University of New Mexico in 1920, the enrollment was 227, and the football field didn't have any grass. The first day of practice each September was devoted to removing tumbleweeds, cacti, and some of the larger rocks. By 1927, Coach Johnson got tired of this; so, he borrowed a plow and a team, and planted grass. He watered it himself every morning. In his spare time, he taught Phys. Ed., coached boxing, baseball, track, golf, basketball, and—when there was water in the fire department pond—swimming. The pond lacked a diving board, but the students jumped out of a tree.

The football team played nearby schools like Montezuma Seminary and occasionally got as far west as Arizona. Then came the big invitation from Occidental College to play in the huge new bowl in Pasadena!

Oxy was evidently reaching far for an opponent. Stanford and UCLA had the Rose Bowl booked for the afternoon of October 12, so Occidental had to settle for Friday night. Few coaches wanted to play under the lights, which were a novelty at the time. (Newsmen were still writing columns with titles like: "Night Baseball and the Mosquito.")

New Mexico had never played at night, but Coach Johnson agreed to try. He felt that a trip to California—the first one in the school's history—would be very educational for his ranch kids . . . and it might help recruiting, too.

His decision came just at the time that Albuquerque was delirious with "airline fever." In the summer of 1929, Charles A. Lindbergh helped organize Transcontinental Air Transport (T. A. T.), the first line with a coast-to-coast schedule. The passengers travelled by train at night and by plane in the daytime, and the segment from Clovis, N. M., to Albuquerque and on to Los Angeles was entirely by air. The line had four or five huge Ford Tri-Motors that carried 12 passengers each.

Caught up in the fever, Coach Johnson decided that the team should fly to the big game, but as a wily strategist, he prepared public opinion by calling several press conferences to say that flying was out of the question. That started the citizens talking, and soon they were all begging him to reconsider. Slowly he gave in, and he finally agreed that every boy who brought a note from his parents—and promised to study on the trip—would have an airplane ride.

Yet T. A. T. didn't have enough space. Even by adding its one spare plane, it could provide only about 18 seats. You see, it did have a few other paying passengers.

"Eighteen seats will be fine," said the coach. "Because of the risk of air-sickness, we'll send our best eleven boys to Los Angeles by train, and the subs will go in the two planes. Then for the return trip, they will switch, and everyone will get a plane ride."

The train group left town quietly that Thursday at 3:45 a.m., and the subs assembled at the Albuquerque Airport before a cheering crowd the same morning at 10. One-fifth of the town's adult population was on hand to see history in the making. The first plane left on schedule, but the second one was delayed by a mysterious weight problem in its tail. A search revealed two student stowaways in the baggage compartment. When they were ejected, the second plane soared away, too.

The pilots took them across Arizona, buzzing herds of antelope and detouring over the Grand Canyon for fun, and the boys reached Los Angeles in time to motor out to Pasadena for a little practice under the lights. But where was the first team? Still on the train! They did not encounter the lights (henceforth described in school annals as "those glaring lights") until the night of the game itself.

Coach Johnson's precautions against air-sickness led to the great strategic error of the trip. The New Mexico starters had difficulty adjusting to the lights. Not once did they manage to catch and hold a punt.

The Oxy team was notably stronger, too, and the New Mexico boys were awed by the size of the Rose Bowl and the huge crowd of 17,000. The Pacific night fog rolled into Pasadena until Coach Johnson thought he was back in the Albuquerque Little Theatre playing the preacher in "Rain." The New Mexico Lobos slipped and slithered on cleats that were designed for sand, not wet grass.

Most troublesome was the fact that the ball was white and the Occidental jerseys were white, too. When Oxy carried the ball, it was well-nigh invisible. (Coach Johnson later persuaded his old coach, Fielding Yost of Michigan, to get the rules changed so that the ball makes a contrast.)

The game ended with a 26 to 0 loss for New Mexico, but everyone enjoyed the trip and the University was proud to have the first aerial team in history.

The air trip did help recruiting. In fact, the football teams became so successful that the regents felt they needed a coach from Notre Dame. So Coach Johnson was elevated to athletic director, and he didn't have to water the grass anymore.

The business manager on that flight, Tom Popejoy, later became president of the University and served with distinction until his retirement in June, 1968. T. A. T. eventually became Trans World Airlines, and now has much bigger planes. The trip across the West is much faster, but the pilots don't buzz antelope anymore.

SOUTH CAROLINA GAMECOCKS

Another group of Gamecocks appearing in Death Valley today for the 66th meeting between South Carolina and Clemson are, starting in the lower left hand corner and reading clockwise, Wally Orrel, Warren Muir, Bob Morris, Bill Parker, Jimmy Pope, Jimmy Poston, Roy Don Reeves, Dave Lucas, Wally Medlin, Tyler Hellams, Lyn Hodge, and Benny Padgett. In the center is Capstone House, an 18-story structure on the South Carolina campus which serves as an honors residence hall for women students and the top floor houses "Top of Carolina," a revolving restaurant.

Cheerleaders Bring 6,800 Students To Fever Pitch . . .

Whenever and where ever the Tigers play, Clemson's cheerleaders are always on hand to support athletic teams of the university. In front is Dave Merry, head cheerleader. Second row are Steve Ellison, Randy Basemore, Dick Merrick, Pete Moxon, Jim Douglas and Jeff Lapin. The lovely coed cheerleaders are Judi Kossler, Dara Williamson, Cathy Moss and Judy Corn. To the left of the Tom Clemson statue is Bob Dotson, the tiger, and to the right is Bob Wilder, the Country Gentleman.

FOOTBALL: The Raw Farce

by GEORGE STADE

THERE ARE many ways in which football is unique among sports, and as many others in which it is the fullest expression of what is at the heart of all sports. There is no other major sport so dependent upon raw force, nor any so dependent on a complex and delicate strategy; none so wide in the range of specialized functions demanded from its players; none so dependent upon the undifferentiated athletic sine qua non, a quick-witted body; none so primitive; none so futuristic; none so American.

Football is first of all a form of play, something one engages in instinctively and only for the sake of performing the activity in question. Among forms of play, football is a game, which means that it is built on communal needs, rather than on private evasions, like mountain climbing. Among games it is a sport; it requires athletic ability, unlike checkers. And among sports, it is one whose mode is violence and whose violence is its special glory.

In some sports—basketball, baseball, soccer—violence is occasional (and usually illegal); in others, like hockey, it is incidental; in others still, car racing, for example, it is accidental. Definitive violence football shares alone with boxing and bullfighting, among major sports. But in bullfighting a man is pitted not against another man, but against an animal, and boxing is a competition between individuals, not teams, and that makes a great difference.

If shame is the proper and usual penalty for failures in sporting competitions between individuals, guilt is the consequence of failing not only oneself and one's fans, but also one's teammates. Failure in football, moreover, seems more related to a failure of courage, seems more unmanly than in any other sport outside of bullfighting. In other sports one loses a knack, is outsmarted, or is merely inferior in ability, but in football, on top of these, a player fails because he "lacks desire," or "can't take it anymore," or "hears footsteps," as his teammates will put it.

These physical and mental risks, the fact that pain and injury are not only commonplace but inevitable, dignify the game, give the playing of it gravity and the watching of it zest. For in sports, as in gambling, and as in most of the activities that we think of as peculiarly masculine, the greater the risk, the more serious the play, the keener the fun. The football player risks the violation of his being, and risks it in public. Every forty-five seconds or so he must endure the intimacy of a violent collision with another man; he must pit his skill, courage, and strength, the qualities that define him, against another's, and then consult his flesh and emotions to see whether he has been diminished or increased in the process.

Many sports, especially those in which there is a goal to be defended, seem enactments of the games animals play under the stimulus of what ethnologists, students of animal behavior, call territory—"the drive to gain, maintain, and defend the exclusive right to a piece of property," as Robert Ardrey puts it. The most striking symptom of this drive is aggressiveness, but among social animals, such as primates, it leads to "amity for the social partner, hostility for the territorial neighbor."

The territorial basis of certain kinds of sports is closest to the surface in football, whose plays are all attempts to gain and defend property through aggression. Does this not make football par excellence the game of instinctual satisfactions, especially for Americans, who are notorious as violent patriots and instinctive defenders of private property? And what is it that corresponds in football to the various feathers, furs, fins, gorgeous colors by means of which animals puff themselves into exaggerated gestures of masculine potency? The football player's equipment, of course. His cleats raise him an inch off the ground. Knee and thigh pads thrust the force lines of his legs forward. His pants are tight against his rump and the back of his thighs, portions of his body which the requirements of the game stuff with muscle. Even the tubby guard looks slim of waist by comparison with his shoulders, extended half a foot on each side by padding. Finally the helmet, which from the esthetic point of view most clearly expresses the genius of the sport. Not only does the helmet make the player inches taller and give his head a size proportionate to the rest of him; it makes him anonymous, inscrutable, more serviceable as a symbol. The football player in uniform strikes the eye in a succession of gestalt shifts: first a hooded phantom out of the paleolithic past of the species; then a premonition of a future of spacemen.

In sum, and I am almost serious about this, football players are to America what tragic actors were to ancient Athens and gladiators to Rome: models of perennially heroic, aggressive, violent humanity, but adapted to the social realities of the times and places that formed them.

For only American money, only the American educational system, only the American life-style could have produced football or created an audience capable of responding to its unique beauty. Who else but a people now grown sedentary on profits from the violence that continues to be their national habit are likely to feel the psychosocial relevance of football with any sort of poignancy or see in football the testing of their national aspirations? Only Americans could. And that is why, every year from September through January, American men neglect their wives and daydream at their jobs.

Football is at once the expression of what has made us Americans and our human response to what has made us Americans. It is the product of a perfect fusion of our human nature with our national character.

So there is no use asking whether football is immoral or brutal or costly. No use asking whether it is a sign of health or disease in our civilization. It is a part of things as here and now they necessarily are. And it is one of the few things of that sort that can make you feel good.

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes Chapter at Clemson

Clemson's offensive backfield coach, Art Baker, and Otis Nelson of the Clemson YMCA were instrumental in forming a chapter of the Fellowship of Christian Athletes on the Clemson campus several years ago. Regular meetings are held by the local FCA Chapter and seldom does a week pass by that some member isn't visiting and talking to various youth and church organizations. What the Fellowship of Christian Athletes mean to five Clemson football players is expressed below.

What does the Fellowship of Christian Athletes mean to me? It would be better to say what the Fellowship has done for me. The Fellowship has helped me to become spiritually stronger. Thanks to my mother and father, I have always been surrounded by people who believed in Christianity. But the Fellowship of Christian Athletes here at Clemson has given me an opportunity that I never had before — to stand up and speak out for Jesus Christ. This has helped be to become stronger. That is what the FCA has meant and done for me. — DON WIGGINS

The Fellowship of Christian Athletes is one of the greatest opportunities for young athletes to express their beliefs in Jesus Christ by Christian witnessing. It gives me an opportunity to fulfill the doubts and soul searching questions that I encounter in this trying world and in each football contest that I play. It also gives me through speaking engagements a chance to tell others of my faith and of the game that makes such a believer of me. — BILLY WARE

As a Christian, an athlete and a sinner, I feel that the Fellowship of Christian Athletes helps me to know a closer relationship with Christ and my fellowman. Realizing that I am far, far from being a perfect Christian, I feel that the FCA is helping me to try to be a better Christian. Football is a violent sport, and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes is proof that Christ can and does dwell in the hearts of football players. — CHARLIE TOLLEY

Being a member of the football team and the Fellowship of Christian Athletes has played an important role in my life at Clemson University. As a player on the "Fighting Tigers" team, I have had the privilege of being associated with the greatest group of boys and coaches in collegiate football. By being affiliated with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes, I have had the opportunity to play on the greatest team in the world — the team for Jesus Christ.

— CHARLIE HOOK

I first came in contact with the Fellowship of Christian Athletes when I was in high school. My senior year I attended the FCA National Conference in Black Mountain, N. C. Finding out that men such as Paul Anderson say they can't make it through a single day without Christ helps you realize how impossible it is for you to try to live without Christ. In college it is often easy to stray away from God. Our FCA meetings are a big help in staying on the right track with God. — JIM SURSAVAGE

ACC Comments: The ACC Football Game I Remember:

ALAN PASTRANA, Maryland Quarterback: The ACC game I remember most was against North Carolina State on November 5, 1966. Through the first 53 minutes of play the Wolfpack defense completely stopped us. N. C. State had put 24 points on the scoreboard and many of the spectators started to leave.

However, with 6:10 left to play in the game, Maryland struck for three touchdown passes of 41, 36 and 56 yards in one minute and 54 seconds. During that 114 seconds we had the ball for four plays and scored on three of them. We lost, 21-24, but the spectators who stayed saw a determined Maryland team trying to come back. (Editor's note: Pastrana was too modest to say that he was the passer who threw those three touchdown passes.)

LARRY DEMPSEY, Duke Safety: I knew we had better beat Carolina or it would be a long winter. We were playing against a lot of boys I had played with in high school and I could just imagine their razzing over Thanksgiving and Christmas vacations.

For most of the season I had played behind senior co-captain Mike Shasby at safety.

But I knew I wanted to beat Carolina and I probably wasn't as nervous as a sophomore should have been. The interception in the third period which led to our fourth touchdown was a big thrill. It was the first of my college career.

Then came the pass I intercepted on the Carolina 26 and ran back for an insurance touchdown. That was even a bigger thrill. And we won the game, the 1966 Duke-Carolina game, 41-25.

TIM BICE, South Carolina Guard: At first, I chose our game with Duke in 1967 because we recovered a fumble for a touchdown on the opening kickoff and then scored with less than a minute remaining in the game to win 21-17, but after thinking it over, I believe our 1967 game with Virginia is most remembered. We were behind 17-0 at half-time and those of us on the defensive unit knew we hadn't played very well. One of Virginia's guards gave me a hard time during the first half. When Pat Watson, our little defensive back, ran a punt back 67 yards in the second half, however, we snapped out of it and began playing better defense. The offense got going, too, and we came back to win, 24-23. And that Virginia guard didn't bother me as much.

RONNIE DUCWORTH, Clemson End: "I think the Duke game really started us going in 1967, but the one that stands out in my mind the most was the one against N. C. State. State came to Clemson with a national ranking. That was some incentive to use. But we also knew that to stay in the championship race, we had to win. Another overflow crowd came to see us play and the team was determined to send all of the Clemson fans away happy. State had some big, strong, tough blockers in its backfield and sometimes it seemed that two or three of those backs were coming by twice. But we were able to stop them. State is always well-coached and drilled in fundamentals. But on that particular day our execution was enough to win and that's what we went to 'Death Valley' for."

GAYLE BOMAR, North Carolina Quarterback: "Without a doubt, the Duke game of 1967 stands out as the one I remember most. We won that game, 20-9, in a big upset to close out the season on a successful note.

The week before that game, I had played probably the worst game of my football career in a dismal loss at the University of Virginia. It was one of those days when nothing seemed to go right. I was determined to prove against Duke that I wasn't all that bad.

I was fortunate enough to score the first touchdown and later threw a touchdown pass to Charlie Carr. After that I felt confident we were going to win. Our entire team was charged up that day. My contributions to the victory were small compared to those made by some other members of the Squad."

GERALD WARREN, N. C. State Kicker: "The first time you succeed at something is always memorable, so I'd have to say that the North Carolina game last year was the game I remember most. Not only did I kick my first field goal from 44-yards out, but I added another one and an extra point for seven points (State won, 13-7). Anytime you have a hand, or foot, in beating your biggest rival, it has to be memorable. The UNC game proved to Coach (Earle) Edwards that I could do the job. I came to State on a small academic scholarship in chemical engineering. But after those field goals against Carolina, Coach Edwards gave me a full grant-in-aid. Winning both the game and the scholarship against Carolina was the greatest for me."

FRANK QUAYLE, Virginia, Halfback: The ACC game I remember most was the 1966 Clemson game played at Death Valley. We knew that Clemson was the best team we would face all year. They jumped off to an 18-6 lead and things looked hopeless for us but our great quarterback, Bob Davis, scored two touchdowns to give us a 21-18 lead. We scored twice more in the third quarter for a 35-18 lead. The 40,000 Clemson fans in the stands were stunned and silent. But Clemson came back and scored 22 points in the fourth quarter to take a 40-35 lead. We came right back and were marching for another touchdown, but they intercepted one of our passes on their 12. It is the game I remember most and also my biggest disappointment.

DIGIT LAUGHRIDGE, Wake Forest Back: The 1966 game with North Carolina is the one I remember the most because the defense played the major role in the 3-0 victory. We stood at the bridge all the second half, when we didn't have a single play on the Carolina side of the field. I recall that I had 10 or 11 unassisted tackles from my corner back post. The most satisfying action came with only 59 seconds left in the game when Jim Clack and I teamed to stop the Tar Heel back just inches short of a first down with the ball deep in our territory. Winning was enough satisfaction, but the fact I was playing against some old high school teammates made it that much more enjoyable.

7. Bob Ward of Maryland. And he was their first All-America. Bill Murray at Duke and the late Jim Tatum at North Carolina were the others.
8. The ACC got its name in June of 1953 at a meeting in Raleigh, N. C. However, the conference was planned and founded May 8, 1953 at Sedgewick Inn near Greensboro, N. C.
9. The odds are 1,024 to 1 but the usual payoff is ONLY 100 to 1.
10. Duke has had six first team All-Americans, Maryland five.
11. Clemson has appeared in seven bowl games since 1940 and has a 4-3 record.
12. Bob Pellegrini, Maryland center, won the award in 1955. Mike McGee, a guard at Duke, was the 1959 winner.
13. Discounting temporary stands, Wallace Wade Stadium at Duke holds 44,000. Clemson, North Carolina State and South Carolina all have permanent seating above 40,000.
14. Clemson has won 59 games in the ACC, Duke 58.
15. Counting all games played since 1953, Duke has won 89, Clemson 87.
16. Bob Davis, Virginia, 1966, gained 1,688 total yards. Norman Sneed, Wake Forest, 1960, totaled 1,676 yards passing. Buddy Gore, Clemson, 1967, rushed for 1,045 yards.
17. Earle Edwards of N. C. State has won four awards. Buddy Gore of Clemson in 1967 and the late Dick Christy of N. C. State in 1957.
19. Clemson has won the title outright five times and tied for a sixth. Duke has won four titles and two ties.
20. Dr. James T. Penney, deceased, served as temporary chairman when the conference was formed and later served as the first president. James H. Weaver was appointed commissioner July 1, 1954, and still serves in that capacity. He is presently the president of the Collegiate Commissioners Association.
21. South Carolina, Virginia and Wake Forest, although only Clemson, Duke and N. C. State have won outright titles.
22. Wake Forest and North Carolina played Oct. 18, 1888.
23. The North Carolina-Virginia series goes into its 73rd game since 1892. This is the oldest football rivalry among major colleges in the south.
24. Wake Forest and South Carolina have been playing each other in football since 1909. The series stands at 19 wins apiece with two ties.
25. The ACC office is located in Greensboro, N. C., which was the most central point of the four-state area where no member was located.

THE ANSWERS

We make it easier to fly.

We'll fly 23 million people this year. Our object is to make flying easier for every one of them.

1. We're making reservations even faster.

With the most sophisticated system in our industry.

It remembers the name, phone number and flight information on more than one million passengers.

2. We're eliminating the check-in line.

By taking your luggage and checking you aboard your flight at curbside.

3. We see that our jets are ready when you are.

By having skilled maintenance technicians who work through the night to have jets ready to fly in the morning.

4. We turn terminals into places to enjoy.

Visit any waiting area. You'll find comfortable seats in living-room-like settings.

Visit an Eastern Ionosphere Lounge. Here, first class passengers can enjoy the atmosphere of a private club.

5. We put you at ease in the air.

An Eastern stewardess knows more about making life easy for you than most people learn in a lifetime.

6. We make dining aloft a pleasure.

We're substituting our cooking for yours, so we try to offer something as good.

We put fine restaurant cooking on selected Ionosphere flights, with an entree choice in both first class and coach.

7. We put a stopwatch on our baggage handlers.

If the clock shows too much time, we find the reason and correct it.

8. We have the finest jets.

With 166 now, and another 37 to be added this year. In the 1970's, the Lockheed 1011 and the supersonics will join this fleet. All piloted by seasoned professionals.

9. We have other people you'll never meet.

People who work out convenient schedules, vacation packages, low-priced fares and pay-as-you-go plans.

All with one goal in mind: to make flying easier for you.

Break your beard in right.

Right now your beard is in the formative stage.

You can shave it with a razor blade like your father does. And each time you do your beard will grow back a little more difficult. Until one day shaving's no longer a chore. It's an agony.

Look no further than your father's face for proof.

But fortunately, you're catching your beard at an early age. You can break it in to be just as shaveable 10 and 20 years from now as it is today.

With a REMINGTON® shaver

And if you think the kind of shave we're selling won't be close enough for you, you're wrong.

Our new blades are sharper than anything that's been in an electric shaver before. And there's a dial that lets you adjust them for your skin and beard.

What's more, you can dial a REMINGTON electric shaver into a sideburn trimmer.

Admittedly, it costs more to buy our electric shaver than a razor and some blades.

But it's a good investment.

These next few years will determine how you and your beard will get along for the rest of your lives. ✦ SPERRY RAND™ ©1968, SPERRY RAND CORP.

We're proud...

that pHisoHex® has been selected as the antibacterial wash to be used by the U.S. Team for the 1968 Olympic Games!

A winning athlete takes special care of his skin. Above all, he protects it against bacteria that can cause infections and lead to missed practice sessions and games.

If you've ever tried to play with an infected blister on your heel or an abscess on your finger, then you know the role of healthy skin in sports. And that's why pHisoHex is an important part of an athlete's daily health routine. pHisoHex is America's leading liquid antibacterial skin cleanser in homes and in hospitals. Used regularly in place of soap, pHisoHex produces a superclean skin and builds up an invisible antibacterial film of hexa-chlorophene to protect your skin against germs between washings.

And if you have problem skin, pHisoHex is often valuable. The antibacterial film it leaves on your face will ward off blemish-infecting bacteria. pHisoHex also helps to soften and wash away blackheads.

Use pHisoHex, the skin cleanser of winning athletes.

Made by Winthrop Laboratories, 90 Park Avenue, New York, N.Y. 10016. Available in drugstores in 5 oz. and 16 oz. plastic squeeze bottles.

Ideal Photography Facilities ...

Haralson

Shockley

Osteen

A photographer staffing a Clemson football game will find no better facilities anywhere than in the press box at Memorial Stadium.

Those who record the game in pictures are accorded everything needed to cover a major football attraction.

With chief photographer Charles Haralson and his assistants Tom Shockley and Bill Osteen on hand, equipment, space, chemicals and game action pictures are available to visiting photographers and sportswriters.

With the Communications Center now in its second year of operation, almost any request for film, video tape or stills can be filled during the week. Harry Durham and Jim Burns head up this operation and these two are ready and willing and on call seven days a week during football season.

A 27-foot open section right in the middle of the press box is reserved for visiting and home team movies during the game.

The covered top deck — sometimes referred to as "Top of the Valley" — has a two-fold purpose. The 35-yard front side facing the field is used by TV cameramen and still photographers with an unhindered vantage point for shooting from top side.

The back side of the upper deck is where the famed buffet dinner is served to all those with working press passes. Tables and benches are furnished and many a yarn is swapped here before game time.

Within the press box is a complete dark room where film can be loaded, processed and wire photos transmitted during the game.

Clemson photographers take color movies used on the Frank Howard Show each Sunday and black and white movies are taken for Clemson coaches and Tiger opponents.

Game action stills are also taken and furnished to any news media desiring a set through the use of a Fotorite machine, a rapid print processing. This machine is the only one in use in the Atlantic Coast Conference and one of the few in the nation so used.

During the past six seasons, nearly 2,500 photos have been given free to the press by this process.

Clemson Radio Network . . .

Phillips

Buchanan

The 1968 season finds the Clemson Football Network in its 15th year and again, it will be one of the largest university-operated networks in the nation.

During 1967 the network averaged over 53 stations a game, which was an all-time high.

The network will have a new team this fall handling the play-by-play and color.

Jim Phillips, who succeeded Bill Goodrich in the capacity of sports director of WFBC Radio and TV in Greenville, will handle the play-by-play for the first time. The color man will be Bruce Buchanan, also of the WFBC staff. Buchanan replaces Jim Kingman.

The Clemson network is operated wholly by the athletic department and has been one of the most successful anywhere. The network has averaged slightly over 50 stations a game for the past seven seasons.

Phillips came to WFBC from his native Ohio with 15 years of broadcasting experience behind him. His first eight years were spent in all phases of radio and television announcing and production. The last seven have been in program and sports directing.

Phillips' affiliations have been with WATG, Ashland, WFAH, Alliance and WIMA, Lima, all in Ohio. He came to WFBC from WFAH where he had been program and sports director since 1961.

He has had seven years of radio play-by-play, doing both high school and college games in football and basketball. His last collegiate assignment before coming to WFBC was play-by-play reporter for the Kent State University Sports Network.

Buchanan, who is general manager of WFBC Radio, is well known in sports broadcasting circles throughout the Carolinas, having done a variety of high school sports for many years.

He has been closely associated with Clemson athletics over the past 15 years.

With Phillips and Buchanan working closely together at WFBC during the week, they can be expected to give the Clemson Network listeners a picture commentary of action taking place on the field each Saturday.
